ACEC OF IDAHO

An organization serving Consulting Engineers and Land Surveyors and businesses that provide services to them.

The American Council of Engineering Companies of Idaho was formed as a non-profit, voluntary self-governing organization, incorporated under the laws of the State of Idaho to assist in protecting the public interest and advance the professional quality of consulting engineers and land surveyors in private practice.

We represent over 65 consulting engineering firms throughout Idaho (our membership can be viewed on our website at www.acecofidaho.org)

Associate Member Firms

are those that provide professional services of a scientific and technical nature that are complementary to the services provided by ACEC Member Firms. Such firms shall not include those that are eligible to be Member Firms or those that supply goods or services that are specified by or used in the operation of Member Firms. Membership in the American Council of Engineering Companies (ACEC) is not required. $750 annual dues

Providing business, legislative and training opportunities in Idaho

ACEC of Idaho is a business and legislative organization whose goals are to:

Monitor and/or promote legislation that benefits consulting engineers and land surveyors in their practices.

Promote the use of qualified and competent professionals in their areas of expertise.

Promote the use of Qualification Based Selection (QBS) in selecting a consultant.

Promote professional and honest relationships with clients.

Promote professional performance which holds paramount the health, safety, and welfare of the public. ACEC of Idaho promotes excellence in its members.

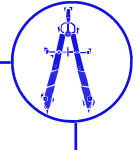

Provide networking opportunities for members.

Act as a representative to consulting engineers on various boards and commissions at local, state and federal levels.

Affiliate Member Firms

are those that provide professional consulting services that support the business operations of Member Firms, such as Management and Marketing Consultants, Attorneys, Accountants and Professional Liability Insurance Agents. Those that supply goods or non-professional services will not be eligible. Membership in the American Council of Engineering Companies (ACEC) is not required.
